

ORGANISING STYLES

Visualist

Visualists are often driven by creativity or a need for inspiration. They can feel disconnected or frustrated if items are hidden away, as it may lead to forgetting or losing track of things. Their organising approach often reflects a desire for freedom and flexibility.

Visibility

Needs items on display to remember they exist and avoid “out of sight, out of mind.”

Categorisation

Prefers broad, general categories to keep systems easy to use and avoid visual clutter.

Maintenance

Prefers quick, straightforward solutions for putting things away. Likely to avoid systems that require folding or precision.

How I Can Help: I’ll help balance the need for visibility with a sense of order, using open storage and simple categories that make it easy to maintain a tidy space.
